Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 18 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Showers easing this evening.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showers gradually easing during the evening, then all parts dry overnight with light winds. Turning rather cold again, with temperatures falling into the low single figures of Celsius. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Wednesday:
After a fine, sunny start, cloud will soon thicken with scattered showers likely again. Some brighter intervals are possible later, however most parts staying rather cloudy. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Dry and bright start Thursday, turning wet and windy later. Windy Friday with showers or longer spells of rain. Winds easing early Saturday, with sunny spells and further showers possible.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.